

The Friend of Bengal

Marissa Manal Waiz

He was as brave as a lion, as wise as an owl.
A knight in shining armour and had a heart of gold
His love for his people was infinite, he inspired hundreds Despite their ages; young or old.
He lived his life, in a fast lane
Not everything was sunshine and rainbows, but he gave people hope; kept them sane
Though times were rough
He was tough
He turned the tide
And battled for a better future, for us , our language and freedom
He was Bangobandhu, the friend of Bengal
